

THE DAILY NATIONAL REPUBLICAN, FRIDAY DECEMBER 6, 1872.

National Republican

W. J. MURTAGH, Editor and Proprietor.

Largest Circulation of Any Morning Paper in the District of Columbia.

PUBLISHED EVERY MORNING.

BY W. J. MURTAGH, 121½ B. & H.
Northeast corner of Tenth and D Streets,
(Reading Pennsylvania Avenue).

and is furnished to subscribers by carriers at 25 cents per month.

Mail subscribers, $1.00 per year; $1.00 for six months, and $1.00 for three months, payable in advance.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

Twenty-five thousand copies are distributed under the head of "Sale or Rent," "Wanted," "Lost and Found," and "Personal," twelve and a half cents per line.

THE WEEKLY REPUBLICAN, is published every Saturday morning, and is furnished to subscribers the following rates: One thousand copies, $10.00; two thousand copies, one thousand, $15.00; single copy, in wrappers, cents.

FOR ALL communications, whether on business or proposition, should be addressed to Wm. J. MURTAGH, PROPOSITIONS NATIONAL REPUBLICAN, Washington, D. C.

BUSINESS HOURS AT THE WHITE HOUSE.

During the coming winter, in order to facilitate business coming before him as much as possible, the President will devote from 10 A. M. to 1 P. M. to his office, Monday to Friday, to the reception of Senators and Representatives, and from twelve o'clock until two afternoons, Tuesdays and Fridays, when Cabinet meetings being held, will be ready by card. The business hours of his office will be from ten o'clock a. m. to three o'clock p. m.

It is understood that there has been discussed upon by the political authorities of the city of New York, to reward Mr. Davysoy, who rendered such efficient service during the recent campaign, by appointing him superintendent of police, in place of Capt. Kelloo, who is about to resign.

The Boston Advertiser thinks that the result of the election will be the same as last year, notwithstanding the eloquent pronouncements upon it by Mayor Mullin and the Chicago Journal. In a long article analyzing the vote it says that the apparent success obtained in the representation is due to entirely different causes.

THE LIBERAL REPUBLICAN AND DEMOCRATIC is in full agreement for a series of resolutions, recommending for a series of good feelings. Their practice, we notice, is very different from their professors. The suggestion that the members of the electoral college should give their votes to General Grant has not been followed in a single instance.

THE POLITICAL MUDGLE IN ALABAMA.

The statements of fact heretofore made in our columns clearly prove that the present condition of political affairs in Alabama was quite chargeable upon the secession Democrats.

It is now evident that the Legislature may be controlled in its interest, of all hazards. The mandate went forth, and was obeyed to the letter.

But the Chronicle insists that the election of a Senator was a prominent feature in the revolutionary action of the Democracy more than appears. For the election of the Republican candidate, or for the action of the Republican party, which had met and organized in the United States court-room two days before Mr. Spencer arrived in Montgomery. We are assured that no effort was spared by Senator Spencer to bring about a reconciliation and make all fair salaries as will secure both the Senate and the country, which he has lately rejected of a salary of $1,000 to take charge of a commercial interest in one of the great cities.

—General W. S. Harries, in the early history of the war, quite a prominent figure among the anti-slavery men, has recently been publicly paid off to public sight. It seems that the General is employing a grown out of his time, and is now engaged in a new field of labor, improving some miles from that city, on the Atlantic and Pacific railroad.

Several small brick houses have been erected, not only in the West, but all over the country, at that point where the offices are to be put up.

—A Chicago paper says: Vice President Colfax, who was always identified with us, has been sent to England, and is estate agent for the family of the late Senator Mullin, and will be appointed for the benefit of the erection of the important first of December, 1865.

—Lord Granville, speaking at the mayor's dinner in London, said he envied Miss Estlin his position, as she could go to work for any cause.

There are doubtless scores of men who would make many of the offices in the Treasury Department, or in the Interior Department, and pay handsomely for the privilege, provided they had a "free thing" of it.

Some one has said that "brains are more easily obtained than integrity." In public offices of great trust both are indispensable, and the Government should pay such reasonable and fair salaries as will secure both the integrity and integrity. We have not yet arrived at that point where offices are to be put up.

—A Chicago paper says: Vice President Colfax, who was always identified with us, has been sent to England, and is estate agent for the family of the late Senator Mullin, and will be appointed for the benefit of the erection of the important first of December, 1865.

—General W. S. Harries, in the early history of the war, quite a prominent figure among the anti-slavery men, has recently been publicly paid off to public sight. It seems that the General is employing a grown out of his time, and is now engaged in a new field of labor, improving some miles from that city, on the Atlantic and Pacific railroad.

Several small brick houses have been erected, not only in the West, but all over the country, at that point where the offices are to be put up.

—A Chicago paper says: Vice President Colfax, who was always identified with us, has been sent to England, and is estate agent for the family of the late Senator Mullin, and will be appointed for the benefit of the erection of the important first of December, 1865.

—Lord Granville, speaking at the mayor's dinner in London, said he envied Miss Estlin his position, as she could go to work for any cause.

There are doubtless scores of men who would make many of the offices in the Treasury Department, or in the Interior Department, and pay handsomely for the privilege, provided they had a "free thing" of it.

Some one has said that "brains are more easily obtained than integrity." In public offices of great trust both are indispensable, and the Government should pay such reasonable and fair salaries as will secure both the integrity and integrity. We have not yet arrived at that point where offices are to be put up.

—A Chicago paper says: Vice President Colfax, who was always identified with us, has been sent to England, and is estate agent for the family of the late Senator Mullin, and will be appointed for the benefit of the erection of the important first of December, 1865.

—General W. S. Harries, in the early history of the war, quite a prominent figure among the anti-slavery men, has recently been publicly paid off to public sight. It seems that the General is employing a grown out of his time, and is now engaged in a new field of labor, improving some miles from that city, on the Atlantic and Pacific railroad.

Several small brick houses have been erected, not only in the West, but all over the country, at that point where the offices are to be put up.

—A Chicago paper says: Vice President Colfax, who was always identified with us, has been sent to England, and is estate agent for the family of the late Senator Mullin, and will be appointed for the benefit of the erection of the important first of December, 1865.

—Lord Granville, speaking at the mayor's dinner in London, said he envied Miss Estlin his position, as she could go to work for any cause.

There are doubtless scores of men who would make many of the offices in the Treasury Department, or in the Interior Department, and pay handsomely for the privilege, provided they had a "free thing" of it.

—A Chicago paper says: Vice President Colfax, who was always identified with us, has been sent to England, and is estate agent for the family of the late Senator Mullin, and will be appointed for the benefit of the erection of the important first of December, 1865.

—General W. S. Harries, in the early history of the war, quite a prominent figure among the anti-slavery men, has recently been publicly paid off to public sight. It seems that the General is employing a grown out of his time, and is now engaged in a new field of labor, improving some miles from that city, on the Atlantic and Pacific railroad.

Several small brick houses have been erected, not only in the West, but all over the country, at that point where the offices are to be put up.

—A Chicago paper says: Vice President Colfax, who was always identified with us, has been sent to England, and is estate agent for the family of the late Senator Mullin, and will be appointed for the benefit of the erection of the important first of December, 1865.

—Lord Granville, speaking at the mayor's dinner in London, said he envied Miss Estlin his position, as she could go to work for any cause.

There are doubtless scores of men who would make many of the offices in the Treasury Department, or in the Interior Department, and pay handsomely for the privilege, provided they had a "free thing" of it.

—A Chicago paper says: Vice President Colfax, who was always identified with us, has been sent to England, and is estate agent for the family of the late Senator Mullin, and will be appointed for the benefit of the erection of the important first of December, 1865.

—General W. S. Harries, in the early history of the war, quite a prominent figure among the anti-slavery men, has recently been publicly paid off to public sight. It seems that the General is employing a grown out of his time, and is now engaged in a new field of labor, improving some miles from that city, on the Atlantic and Pacific railroad.

Several small brick houses have been erected, not only in the West, but all over the country, at that point where the offices are to be put up.

—A Chicago paper says: Vice President Colfax, who was always identified with us, has been sent to England, and is estate agent for the family of the late Senator Mullin, and will be appointed for the benefit of the erection of the important first of December, 1865.

—Lord Granville, speaking at the mayor's dinner in London, said he envied Miss Estlin his position, as she could go to work for any cause.

There are doubtless scores of men who would make many of the offices in the Treasury Department, or in the Interior Department, and pay handsomely for the privilege, provided they had a "free thing" of it.

—A Chicago paper says: Vice President Colfax, who was always identified with us, has been sent to England, and is estate agent for the family of the late Senator Mullin, and will be appointed for the benefit of the erection of the important first of December, 1865.

—General W. S. Harries, in the early history of the war, quite a prominent figure among the anti-slavery men, has recently been publicly paid off to public sight. It seems that the General is employing a grown out of his time, and is now engaged in a new field of labor, improving some miles from that city, on the Atlantic and Pacific railroad.

Several small brick houses have been erected, not only in the West, but all over the country, at that point where the offices are to be put up.

—A Chicago paper says: Vice President Colfax, who was always identified with us, has been sent to England, and is estate agent for the family of the late Senator Mullin, and will be appointed for the benefit of the erection of the important first of December, 1865.

—Lord Granville, speaking at the mayor's dinner in London, said he envied Miss Estlin his position, as she could go to work for any cause.

There are doubtless scores of men who would make many of the offices in the Treasury Department, or in the Interior Department, and pay handsomely for the privilege, provided they had a "free thing" of it.

—A Chicago paper says: Vice President Colfax, who was always identified with us, has been sent to England, and is estate agent for the family of the late Senator Mullin, and will be appointed for the benefit of the erection of the important first of December, 1865.

—General W. S. Harries, in the early history of the war, quite a prominent figure among the anti-slavery men, has recently been publicly paid off to public sight. It seems that the General is employing a grown out of his time, and is now engaged in a new field of labor, improving some miles from that city, on the Atlantic and Pacific railroad.

Several small brick houses have been erected, not only in the West, but all over the country, at that point where the offices are to be put up.

—A Chicago paper says: Vice President Colfax, who was always identified with us, has been sent to England, and is estate agent for the family of the late Senator Mullin, and will be appointed for the benefit of the erection of the important first of December, 1865.

—Lord Granville, speaking at the mayor's dinner in London, said he envied Miss Estlin his position, as she could go to work for any cause.

There are doubtless scores of men who would make many of the offices in the Treasury Department, or in the Interior Department, and pay handsomely for the privilege, provided they had a "free thing" of it.

—A Chicago paper says: Vice President Colfax, who was always identified with us, has been sent to England, and is estate agent for the family of the late Senator Mullin, and will be appointed for the benefit of the erection of the important first of December, 1865.

—General W. S. Harries, in the early history of the war, quite a prominent figure among the anti-slavery men, has recently been publicly paid off to public sight. It seems that the General is employing a grown out of his time, and is now engaged in a new field of labor, improving some miles from that city, on the Atlantic and Pacific railroad.

Several small brick houses have been erected, not only in the West, but all over the country, at that point where the offices are to be put up.

—A Chicago paper says: Vice President Colfax, who was always identified with us, has been sent to England, and is estate agent for the family of the late Senator Mullin, and will be appointed for the benefit of the erection of the important first of December, 1865.

—Lord Granville, speaking at the mayor's dinner in London, said he envied Miss Estlin his position, as she could go to work for any cause.

There are doubtless scores of men who would make many of the offices in the Treasury Department, or in the Interior Department, and pay handsomely for the privilege, provided they had a "free thing" of it.

—A Chicago paper says: Vice President Colfax, who was always identified with us, has been sent to England, and is estate agent for the family of the late Senator Mullin, and will be appointed for the benefit of the erection of the important first of December, 1865.

—General W. S. Harries, in the early history of the war, quite a prominent figure among the anti-slavery men, has recently been publicly paid off to public sight. It seems that the General is employing a grown out of his time, and is now engaged in a new field of labor, improving some miles from that city, on the Atlantic and Pacific railroad.

Several small brick houses have been erected, not only in the West, but all over the country, at that point where the offices are to be put up.

—A Chicago paper says: Vice President Colfax, who was always identified with us, has been sent to England, and is estate agent for the family of the late Senator Mullin, and will be appointed for the benefit of the erection of the important first of December, 1865.

—Lord Granville, speaking at the mayor's dinner in London, said he envied Miss Estlin his position, as she could go to work for any cause.

There are doubtless scores of men who would make many of the offices in the Treasury Department, or in the Interior Department, and pay handsomely for the privilege, provided they had a "free thing" of it.

—A Chicago paper says: Vice President Colfax, who was always identified with us, has been sent to England, and is estate agent for the family of the late Senator Mullin, and will be appointed for the benefit of the erection of the important first of December, 1865.

—General W. S. Harries, in the early history of the war, quite a prominent figure among the anti-slavery men, has recently been publicly paid off to public sight. It seems that the General is employing a grown out of his time, and is now engaged in a new field of labor, improving some miles from that city, on the Atlantic and Pacific railroad.

Several small brick houses have been erected, not only in the West, but all over the country, at that point where the offices are to be put up.

—A Chicago paper says: Vice President Colfax, who was always identified with us, has been sent to England, and is estate agent for the family of the late Senator Mullin, and will be appointed for the benefit of the erection of the important first of December, 1865.

—Lord Granville, speaking at the mayor's dinner in London, said he envied Miss Estlin his position, as she could go to work for any cause.

There are doubtless scores of men who would make many of the offices in the Treasury Department, or in the Interior Department, and pay handsomely for the privilege, provided they had a "free thing" of it.

—A Chicago paper says: Vice President Colfax, who was always identified with us, has been sent to England, and is estate agent for the family of the late Senator Mullin, and will be appointed for the benefit of the erection of the important first of December, 1865.

—General W. S. Harries, in the early history of the war, quite a prominent figure among the anti-slavery men, has recently been publicly paid off to public sight. It seems that the General is employing a grown out of his time, and is now engaged in a new field of labor, improving some miles from that city, on the Atlantic and Pacific railroad.

Several small brick houses have been erected, not only in the West, but all over the country, at that point where the offices are to be put up.

—A Chicago paper says: Vice President Colfax, who was always identified with us, has been sent to England, and is estate agent for the family of the late Senator Mullin, and will be appointed for the benefit of the erection of the important first of December, 1865.

—Lord Granville, speaking at the mayor's dinner in London, said he envied Miss Estlin his position, as she could go to work for any cause.

There are doubtless scores of men who would make many of the offices in the Treasury Department, or in the Interior Department, and pay handsomely for the privilege, provided they had a "free thing" of it.

—A Chicago paper says: Vice President Colfax, who was always identified with us, has been sent to England, and is estate agent for the family of the late Senator Mullin, and will be appointed for the benefit of the erection of the important first of December, 1865.

—General W. S. Harries, in the early history of the war, quite a prominent figure among the anti-slavery men, has recently been publicly paid off to public sight. It seems that the General is employing a grown out of his time, and is now engaged in a new field of labor, improving some miles from that city, on the Atlantic and Pacific railroad.

Several small brick houses have been erected, not only in the West, but all over the country, at that point where the offices are to be put up.

—A Chicago paper says: Vice President Colfax, who was always identified with us, has been sent to England, and is estate agent for the family of the late Senator Mullin, and will be appointed for the benefit of the erection of the important first of December, 1865.

—Lord Granville, speaking at the mayor's dinner in London, said he envied Miss Estlin his position, as she could go to work for any cause.

There are doubtless scores of men who would make many of the offices in the Treasury Department, or in the Interior Department, and pay handsomely for the privilege, provided they had a "free thing" of it.

—A Chicago paper says: Vice President Colfax, who was always identified with us, has been sent to England, and is estate agent for the family of the late Senator Mullin, and will be appointed for the benefit of the erection of the important first of December, 1865.

—General W. S. Harries, in the early history of the war, quite a prominent figure among the anti-slavery men, has recently been publicly paid off to public sight. It seems that the General is employing a grown out of his time, and is now engaged in a new field of labor, improving some miles from that city, on the Atlantic and Pacific railroad.

Several small brick houses